BIOGRAPHY

Belmont Forsythe, the son of Pearl A. Forsythe and his wife Ethel (Mallory) Forsythe, was born on 8 March 1920 in Belton, Kentucky. He graduated from Kirk High School in Beechmont, Kentucky in 1937, then earned an A. B. degree from Western Kentucky State Teachers College (now WKU) in 1940. Forsythe worked as a math teacher, band director, and school principal in Scottsville, Kentucky after obtaining his degree, but decided to enlist in the U.S. Marine Corps as a private on 8 December 1941, just a day after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He served in several capacities in the United States, the South Pacific and Newfoundland, rising to the rank of Captain in 1945.

Forsythe received a Master of Philosophy degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1947. He completed one semester of the Ph.D. program at McGill University in Montreal before being recalled to active duty in the Marine Corps. He served in the Caribbean and also in Korea, where he was assigned to the United Nations Command as a team captain in charge of receiving prisoners of war from North Korea.

In 1957, Forsythe, now a major, resigned his commission and was sworn in as a major in the U.S. Army Signal Corps. He served in the United States and Japan, retiring as a Lieutenant Colonel on 31 July 1966. Forsythe then served as the Senior Army Instructor of the Junior ROTC Department at Punahou Academy in Honolulu, Hawaii. He retired from that position on 31 August 1972.

Forsythe married Agnes C. Baxter on 3 December 1942 and had four children. His varied interests included jazz history and appreciation, quilting and needlepoint. He died on 3 July 2005 after a fire at his Seattle, Washington home and is buried at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection contains materials relating to the life of Belmont Forsythe. Prominently featured are records relating to his career in the U.S. Marine Corps and U.S. Army Signal Corps, and material related to his personal interests and hobbies. Also included are photographs, a small amount of correspondence, and cassette recordings by Forsythe recounting his life and experiences. A collection inventory is in Box 1, Folder 1.

Box 1 contains material mostly related to Forsythe's non-military activities and interests, although biographical data (Folder 2) includes details on his military career as well as his education. Other personal information in this box includes a broadside for a band concert dating to his time as band director at Scottsville (Kentucky) High School (Folder 3); materials relating to his community interests, such as Sunday School teaching and the Boy Scouts (Folder 4); passports (Folder 5) and a map illustrating his world travel (Folder 6); miscellaneous jokes and quips (Folder 7); Forsythe's 1949 correspondence with British economist Harold Laski regarding Laski's view of trade unions (Folder 8); reading lists and study materials relating to Forsythe's interest in jazz (Folder 9); clippings on quilts and quilting (Folders 10, 11) and Forsythe's taped comments on his quilting (Folder 12); materials about folk artist Ettore "Ted" De Grazia, whom Forsythe admired (Folders, 13, 14); and data on a few Forsythe family members (Folder 15).

Box 2 contains materials relating to Forsythe's military service with the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II and the Korean War, and with the U.S. Army Signal Corps afterward. Included are details of his service and medical records, and a "Short Snorter," a dollar bill signed by then-Senator Albert "Happy" Chandler and apparently given to those crossing the equator and the international date line in a single trip (Folder 1); military certificates and citations (Folder 2); and World War II letters Forsythe wrote to Mattie McLean, in whose office he had worked while a student at WKU and who he regarded as his "foster mother." Writing her from the Solomon Islands, Forsythe refers to the hardships of living in the jungle and criticizes civilians at home who complained of rationing and shortages (Folder 3). Also included are notes and maps relating to Forsythe's service in the Solomon Islands (Folder 4) and at the Naval Station in Argentina, Newfoundland (Folder 5). Of interest and relating to his service with the U.S. Army Signal Corps at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey (Folder 6) are invitations, notes and cards of a social nature from foreign military personnel who were training at the facility; many of the cards have Far Eastern themes. In 1995 and 2003, Forsythe recorded his personal history on several cassette tapes. These are included in Box 2 (Folders 7-13) along with a summary of the tapes' contents (Folder 14).

Box 3 contains miscellaneous materials relating to Forsythe's military career and personal interests: books on Japanese and Korean culture (Folders 1, 3); clippings on the Korean War and prisoner of war exchanges (Folder 2); a tape of an Army psychiatrist's lecture on brainwashing (Folder 6); and photographs of Forsythe (Folders 7-9), his needlepoint and rug hooking (Folder 10), his Seattle garden (Folder 11), his quilts (Folder 12), and of Ted De Grazia artwork (Folder 13). Of interest is a souvenir booklet given to Forsythe by a former prisoner of war documenting the 1952 Intercamp Olympics, a propaganda event staged by the North Koreans featuring competition among prisoners from several camps (Folder 4). Also of interest (Folder 5) is a cassette tape containing Japanese music and Forsythe's account of his duty late in the 1950s at a U.S. base in southern Japan nicknamed "Goat Hill Farms"; included is a description of the local farmers' use of human waste as fertilizer, collected and carried to their fields in "honey buckets."
